Our History

In 2021, we celebrated 40 years of serving families in Kansas City. To learn more about our history, scan the QR code below to view a short video on YouTube.

At Ronald McDonald House Charities of Kansas City (RMHC-KC), we keep families with sick children close to each other and the care and resources they need. At our three Houses adjacent to Children's Mercy Hospital and Ronald McDonald Family Room, we create places of respite where families can rally around and support one another.

On any given night, Ronald McDonald House Charities of Kansas City (RMHC-KC) serves 91 families.

RMHC-KC alleviates the worry and expense of finding a close, comfortable and affordable place for a family to stay while their child receives the medical care they need. That can make a world of difference to a child bravely battling an illness or recovering from a serious injury.

Our mission at Ronald McDonald House Charities is to reduce the burden of childhood illness on children and their families. We accomplish this by:

- Creating a caring and uplifting environment
- Providing comfortable lodging convenient to a health facility
- Undertaking resource and fund development activities that support our facilities, programs and services

Facts about RMHC-KC

- We serve families whose children are receiving treatment for serious illness (like pediatric cancer, organ transplants, babies in the NICU, emergency situations and complex surgeries).
- We have 91 rooms to host families, in a typical year we are full nearly every night.
- Families do not pay to stay here, we rely on the community to help keep us going and open. It costs us $100 to host a family for a night.
- We are a local 501c3 organization, every dollar stays in KC to support this important work.
- In addition to a room, we provide meals, transportation, hygiene products, clothing and most any other basic need items while a family is with us.
- Some families are here for a few nights, and some are here for months at a time (had a family go home earlier this year that was with us for a year). As long as you need us, we'll be here.

MEET THE SORIANO FAMILY

Scraped knees. Sore throats. Upset tummies. There's a certain amount of illness and injury a mother expects to nurse her child through. When Angelic Soriano's son, DeAngelo, got a bloody nose during a family trip, she thought it was just one of those things. But after an hour and a half, she knew something was wrong.

Back home in Garden City, Kansas, Angelic took DeAngelo to his pediatrician, who found that his blood cell count was dangerously low. So low, the pediatrician told Angelic to go home, grab some clothes and get DeAngelo to Wesley Medical Center in Wichita as fast as possible.

And just like that, Angelic's happy, healthy son was sick.

The diagnosis: severe aplastic anemia, a condition where the body doesn't produce enough blood cells. DeAngelo would need a bone marrow transplant. From that moment, the Soriano family's world, usually full of laughter, homecooked meals and game nights, was consumed by trips to Children's Mercy in Kansas City, platelet transfusions and the search for a donor.

Due to the relentless travel, Angelic lost her job as a medical assistant. She was doing her best, but she could feel a black cloud descending over her. Would things ever get better?

Angelic wasn't alone in the fight, though. Ronald McDonald House Charities of Kansas City took her family in during trips to Children's Mercy. Surrounded by unknowns, Angelic was at least able to make DeAngelo his favorite green enchiladas in the kitchen at Ronald McDonald House.

Through it all, DeAngelo was Angelic's light in the darkness. The poking, the prodding, the days spent in hospital beds did nothing to dim DeAngelo's light. The best news of all? They discovered his older brother, Xavier, would be able to donate his bone marrow so DeAngelo could heal.

With DeAngelo's blood cell counts going up, he's expected to make a full recovery. And because of support from people like you, the Soriano family remained strong throughout this journey.
